Just minutes from downtown Boston via the MBTA, boat or car, the City of Quincy is truly the birthplace of our great American story. Founding fathers John and John Quincy Adams, John Hancock and many others called Quincy home, and they shaped their ideas—ideas that would eventually change the world—right here.

The Adams National Historical Park and the United First Parish Church, where the 2nd and 6th United States Presidents and their First Ladies rest, are national historic treasures virtually unmatched in their authenticity. But our history is just part of the story. With twenty-seven miles of coastline and beaches, acres of beautiful protected parks, the most interesting and diverse dining scene outside of Boston, rock climbing and hiking at the Blue Hills Reservation, world-class golf courses and so much more; there’s much to love when you Discover Quincy!

Welcome to Quincy!
Sincerely,
Thomas P. Koch, Mayor

Experience Quincy’s National Treasures!
A walk through Quincy Center takes you on a voyage through time from the earliest colonial days, to the era of the Adams, Quincy, and Hancock families, and to Quincy’s decades as the national center of granite quarrying and building. Adams and Hancock Streets in Quincy Center are part of one of the oldest roads in America. A path cut by Native Americans untold centuries ago, it became, in earliest colonial times, the road from Boston to Plymouth and remained in John Adams’ time the main road south of Boston.

Enjoy the Hancock Adams Common, opened in the fall of 2018, now connects Quincy City Hall, First Church of Presidents and Hancock Cemetery with handsome granite elements, heroic bronze statues of John Hancock and John Adams, and is complimented by contemplative and robust water features.

JOHN ADAMS & JOHN QUINCY ADAMS BIRTHPLACES
133 Franklin Street
John Adams was born in the salt box house located only 75 feet away from the birthplace of his son John Quincy Adams. Young John and his bride Abigail started their family, the future President launched his career in law and politics, and it was here that he, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin wrote the Massachusetts Constitution. This document, still in use today, greatly influenced the development of the United States Constitution.

PEACE FIELD – THE SUMMER WHITE HOUSE
135 Adams Street
The residence of four generations of the Adams family from 1788 to 1927, it was home to Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams; First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams. Stroll the grounds which include an 18th-century style formal garden, historic orchard, Stone Library (1870) and Carriage House (1873).

HANCOCK ADAMS COMMON
1305 Hancock Street

Opened in the fall of 2018, Hancock Adams Common now connects Quincy City Hall, the “Church of Presidents” and Hancock Cemetery with handsome granite elements, heroic bronze statues of John Hancock and John Adams, and is complimented by contemplative and robust water features.

ADAMS CRYPT UNITED FIRST PARISH CHURCH
1306 Hancock Street | 617-773-0062 | ufpc.org
Open April 19-Nov. 11. M-F: 11-4, Sat/Sun: 12-4.

Known as the “Church of the Presidents,” this historic church was built from Quincy granite in 1828 with funds provided by John Adams. Tours of the church include a visit to the Adams Family Crypt, the final resting place of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, and First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams and the Presidential Pew of John Quincy Adams.

QUINCY HISTORY MUSEUM
8 Adams Street | 617-773-1144 | QuincyHistory.org
Open Mon-Fri. 9 am – 4 pm. Saturdays, mid-April–October, noon – 3 pm.

The Adams Academy, built of Quincy granite, is an early and important example of Gothic revival architecture in America. Endowed by John Adams as a preparatory school for boys, it was built on the site where the legendary patriot John Hancock was born. Now home to the Quincy Historical Society whose museum showcases the city’s history from Native American times up through the early 21st century.

CITY HALL
1305 Hancock Street

Built in 1844, old City Hall is one of the oldest functioning seats of government in the country. Its academic Greek Revival architecture has been described as one of the outstanding examples of mid-century classical American design. Unusual in both its monumentality and in the severity of its granite detail, these features may be attributed to its architect Solomon Willard, who was instrumental in the development of the granite industry in Quincy. Historic preservation work has recently been completed and visitors are welcome to tour the Great Hall and historic exhibit.

HANCOCK CEMETERY
1307 Hancock Street

Scan this code to get connected to a Google walking tour map of the Hancock Cemetery.

From 1630 to 1854, Quincy’s most illustrious residents and civic leaders were buried here; Henry Adams, the first Adams to live in Quincy and ancestor of John Adams; Colonel John Quincy, for whom the city is named; patriot Josiah Quincy, Veterans of the Revolution, the War of 1812, and the Civil War. The memorials offer a chronicle of gravestone art from colonial winged skulls and cherubim, to Federalist classical motifs, to Quincy’s 19th century role as the national center for granite quarrying and carving.

THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY
40 Washington Street | 617-376-1301
ThomasCraneLibrary.org

Built in 1881 by noted architect Henry Hobson Richardson, who also designed Boston’s famed Trinity Church, the Thomas Crane Public Library’s original building is a masterpiece of 19th century Romanesque architecture. Its ornate woodwork and LaFarge stained glass windows are truly works of art. Since the library opened in 1882, several additions have been constructed, including a multimillion-dollar addition in 2001 that combines the architectural spirit of the original Richardson building with the technological capabilities of a 21st century library.

DOROTHY QUINCY HOMESTEAD
34 Butler Road | 617-742-3190 | nscla.org
Open limited Sat.

The earliest surviving home of the Quincy family, this house was built in 1686 by Edmund Quincy and greatly expanded and remodeled in 1706 displaying the evolution of colonial architecture. The childhood home of Dorothy Quincy, who became Mrs. John Hancock, the house welcomed Benjamin Franklin as a guest and had frequent visits from young lawyer John Adams.

JOSIAH QUINCY HOUSE
20 Muirhead Street | 617-994-5930
HistoricNewEngland.org
Open 1st & 3rd Sat., Jun-Oct

This country estate overlooking Quincy Bay transports visitors to the Revolutionary War era and tells the story of a woman’s work to preserve her family’s history more than a hundred years later. Revolutionary leader Josiah Quincy built the house in 1770. Quincy and his family played key roles in the social and political life of Massachusetts for generations, producing three mayors of Boston and a president of Harvard.
NUT ISLAND

147 Sea Ave  |  nps.gov/boha

Part of the Boston Harbor Islands National Recreation Area, and one of the few accessible by land, this property offers stellar vistas of the Boston skyline and other Harbor Islands. A great place to watch the sunset, this location is popular for walking, picnicking, or fishing from the pier.

U.S. NAVAL SHIPBUILDING MUSEUM QUINCY BUILT U.S.S SALEM

551 South Street, Pier 3  |  617-479-7900  |  uss-salem.org  |  Open seasonal weekends

Quincy’s proud shipbuilding history comes to life aboard this Cold War-era heavy cruiser. Berthed at her home port, the former Fore River Shipyard, the USS Salem serves as home to the “Kilroy Was Here” catchphrase and the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum. Onboard exhibits feature memorabilia of over 100 U.S. Naval Cruisers including the City’s namesake U.S.S. Quincy and U.S.S. Newport News, a Military Weapons Display and Archives, and Model Ships collection.

BOSTON HARBOR ISLANDS NATIONAL RECREATION AREA

617-223-8666  |  nps.gov/boha

Comprised of 34 islands situated along the Greater Boston shoreline, many can be viewed from Quincy’s coastal roads. This amazing natural resource affords visitors the opportunity to explore tide pools, walk through a Civil War era fort, climb a lighthouse, hike through salt marshes, camp under the stars or just relax while fishing, picnicking or swimming. Offering easy access to the islands, Quincy is the ideal launching point for boaters.

SOUTHER TIDE MILL

622 Southern Artery  |  SoutherTideMill.com

One of only five remaining grist mills in the United States, historic preservation work is currently underway. Built in 1806 on the bank of the Town River, the mill represents the birth of Quincy’s maritime and granite industries. Quincy granite shipped from here was used in notable sites including the Boston Custom House, Bunker Hill Monument and Kings Chapel. The brig Souther, built as a gold rush ship, was built here and shipbuilding continued through the late 19th century.

HOUGHS NECK MARITIME CENTER

137 Bay View Ave

This public boat ramp and landing is well positioned for the recreational boater for a day on the water, whether heading out fishing or as a gateway to the Boston Harbor Islands National Park. Accessible two hours either side of high tide, this free boat ramp also offers free parking for trailers.

WOLLASTON BEACH

Quincy Shores Reservation  |  WollastonBeach.org

Quincy’s largest beach offers 2.5 miles of clean sand, swimming, lifeguards, free parking, a bathhouse, scenic views of the Boston Harbor Islands National Park and a continuous walkway for biking, walking & jogging. Some of the best fried clams in the area can be found at a variety of eateries, as well as hot dogs, hamburgers, ice cream and more. There are also two children’s playgrounds with picnic areas.

MOSWETUSSET HUMMOCK AND CADDY PARK

Quincy Shores Reservation, 435 East Squantum Street and 1244 Quincy Shore Drive

Moswetuset Hummock (1617) was the seat of the Massachusetts Native American sachem, Chickatabot, where he negotiated with the early English settlers. The William R. Caddy Memorial Park and Black’s Creek Salt Marsh were used by Native Americans for fishing, shell fishing, and hunting. Colonists harvested salt hay from the marsh and established several tide grist mills around the estuary. Significant for its beauty and for rare Native American artifacts, including 256 stone tools, discovered on site, the park also has informational signage and children’s playground equipment.

SALT MARSH TRAIL AND SAILOR’S HOME CEMETERY

Quincy Shores Reservation, Fenno Street

A half-mile long self-guided nature walk, designed to showcase the major plant and animal species that find their homes in and around the Quincy salt marsh, leads to a cemetery with the remains of US Navy veterans housed at the National Sailors’ Home. The long rows of simple, shaped white marble stones set up a pleasing rhythm as they slope towards the marshland which overlooks Quincy Bay.
Historic Preservation is underway at the Lyons Turning Mill on Quarry Hills Drive and a mini museum opened to show the history of quarrying and stonecutting and its relationship to the industrialization of Quincy. Built in 1894, the mill used giant lathes to turn granite and other kinds of stone into columns, spheres, and works of art. The Quincy Quarry Railroad, which was built at the same time, ran through its center and a 20-ton overhead crane inside the mill could handle the manufactured stone products that were made there.

This historic site in the Blue Hills Reservation is an impressive remnant of the nation’s first commercial railroad (1826), which used horse-drawn cars to carry the massive granite blocks from the Quincy Quarries for building the Bunker Hill Monument to water transport on the Neponset River.

The Neponset River is a natural estuary providing an unusually rich and diverse habitat for plants and animals. The Riverwalk provides a two mile trail along the Quincy side of the Neponset River estuary, from the Gazebo at the Adams Inn to Squantum Point Park offering spectacular views of the estuary and the City of Boston. Squantum Point Park was created on the site of the former Dennison Airport where famed pilot Amelia Earhart flew the airport’s first official flight on September 30, 1927. Additional trails are located along the Milton and Boston sections of the river.
HALL CEMETERY
Hall Place

Besides its picturesque beauty, this West Quincy cemetery is singularly significant for its association with Solomon Willard, “the Father of the Granite Industry” and noted architect of the Bunker Hill Monument and Quincy City Hall. The land and funds to create the cemetery were donated by a wealthy Adams Street bachelor, James Hall. Solomon Willard laid out the cemetery and raised in it an enormous thirty ton column, quarried from Wigwam Quarry, which had been rejected for use in the New York Exchange. Before setting the column upright, Willard deposited a complete set of stonemason’s tools in the top of the shaft.

MOUNT WOLLASTON CEMETERY
20 Sea St. | Self-guided tour brochures available

One of America’s earliest garden cemeteries, the first two plots were ceremoniously purchased on May 5, 1856 by Charles Francis Adams, Sr. A two and one half mile long stone wall, erected for the perimeter in 1934-35 by the Works Progress Administration, is dedicated to the memory of Thomas Morton who in 1625 led the settlement here after the arrival of Captain Richard Wollaston. The variety of ornate gravestones and granite monuments beautify this outdoor museum honoring three Adams descendants whose lives were lost in service to our country, veterans, former Mayors and prominent granite industry leaders.

CHRIST CHURCH BURIAL GROUND
(1725 – 1878) | 54 School Street

Historically significant as the site of the original building and cemetery of the First Church of England in Braintree, the oldest Episcopal parish in Quincy, and the second formed in Massachusetts (the first being King’s Chapel in Boston), this historic cemetery has 200 gravestones.

SNUG HARBOR SAILOR’S CEMETERY
(1882 – 1967) | 333 Palmer Street, Rear

The entrance is marked with a large slate headstone with an incised anchor and inscription: “Here rest retired mariners who in their later years made their home at the Sailor’s Snug Harbor which from 1856-1950 was situated southerly from here one third of a mile.” It is fitting the cemetery faces the sea that these men had served so well. The stones are all simply shaped white marble with the merchant mariner’s name and age; no birth or death dates are stated.

Marina Bay has become the Boston area’s premier, world class waterfront dining and entertainment destination all year round. Want a quiet escape? Take a walk around Squantum Point Park and learn about the site’s history as an airfield and its connection to Amelia Earhart. Not interested in owning a boat but want to get on the water? Consider joining Freedom Boat Club, where you are well positioned to explore the harbor islands or a day of fishing.

Adams National Historical Park

This National Park Service site is comprised of 11 historic structures including the John Adams Birthplace, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace, the Old House, the Stone Library, and a cultural landscape totaling almost 14 acres. The story encompasses five generations of the Adams family from 1720 to 1927, including two Presidents and First Ladies, three U.S. Ministers, historians, writers and family members who supported and contributed to the success of these public figures. Regularly scheduled tours of the historic homes are offered seasonally and begin at the Visitor Center located at 1250 Hancock Street. The park provides a free trolley bus that offers service between sites. Validated parking.
